Strategy B	GAME DEVELOPMENT ESSENTIALS AN INTRODUCTION	2
Genre:
(Tie your genre to your game mechanics. For example, a strategy game might focus on management using cards as resources – and a puzzle game could involve pattern recognition and matching that could be accomplished through movement across the game field. Avoid the trivia/quiz genre!) Goal:	Game Title:
(Tie your genre to your game mechanics. For example, a strategy game might focus on management using cards as resources – and a puzzle game could involve pattern recognition and matching that could be accomplished through movement across the game field. Avoid the trivia/quiz genre!) Goal:	Genre:
(What's the purpose of your game? Are you trying to solve a particular problem? Games aren't always developed for purely entertainment purposes – although entertainment is definitely a viable goal!) Challenges : List three challenges that a player might face in your game. Challenge 1)	(Tie your genre to your game mechanics. For example, a strategy game might focus on management using carc as resources – and a puzzle game could involve pattern recognition and matching that could be accomplished	ls
(What's the purpose of your game? Are you trying to solve a particular problem? Games aren't always developed for purely entertainment purposes – although entertainment is definitely a viable goal!) Challenges : List three challenges that a player might face in your game. Challenge 1)	Goal:
Challenge 1)	(What's the purpose of your game? Are you trying to solve a particular problem? Games aren't always developed	d
Challenge 2) Challenge 3) Strategies: For each challenge listed above, identify three strategies that can be used to address that challenge. Consider how each strategy can be visualized and how your game materials (dice, spinner, timer, cards, board, game bits) can be used to accomplish these strategies. Challenge 1) Strategy A Strategy B	Challenges : List three challenges that a player might face in your game.
Challenge 3) Strategies: For each challenge listed above, identify three strategies that can be used to address that challenge. Consider how each strategy can be visualized and how your game materials (dice, spinner, timer, cards, board, game bits) can be used to accomplish these strategies. Challenge 1) Strategy A Strategy B	Challenge 1)
Strategies: For each challenge listed above, identify three strategies that can be used to address that challenge. Consider how each strategy can be visualized and how your game materials (dice, spinner, timer, cards, board, game bits) can be used to accomplish these strategies. Challenge 1) Strategy A Strategy B	Challenge 2)
Consider how each strategy can be visualized and how your game materials (dice, spinner, timer, cards, board, game bits) can be used to accomplish these strategies. Challenge 1) Strategy A Strategy B	Challenge 3)
Strategy A Strategy B	Consider how each strategy can be visualized and how your game materials (dice, spinner, timer, cards, board,	) .
Strategy A Strategy B Strategy C	Challenge 1)
Strategy B	Strategy A
Strategy C
	Strategy C

© 2022 Jeannie Novak

GAME DEVELOPMENT ESSENTIALS AN INTRODUCTION
Strategies (continued):
Challenge 2)
Strategy A
Strategy B
Strategy C
Challenge 3)
Strategy A
Strategy B
Strategy C
Victory Condition (related to game mechanics, not the game goal; e.g., "reach the fini opponent," "run out of cards first"):	sh line first," "outwit your
Defeat Condition (related to game mechanics, not the game goal; e.g., "have the most timer runs out"):	t cards in your hand after the
NOVY UNLIMITED	© 2022 Jeannie Novak